The layering of the past, present, and future generations in a university has been a tradition in libraries and spaces. This holds true with the library, a space that serves as a warm, inviting place for study and research. The library is a place that fuels the mind and allows for the exploration of knowledge without any barriers. The design and layout of the library emphasize the importance of natural light, symbolizing the unity that goes beyond time and space.

The library is a chapter in which all who inhabit it will add their stories, within the walls of the university library—a space where the notion of building upon the past is celebrated. The lighting design, with its warm, inviting glow, creates a pure definition of space to accommodate the needs of the students. The lighting is designed to enhance the atmosphere, with the use of track lighting in the areas where natural light is not sufficient. The design of the lighting layout is crucial in creating a comfortable and inviting environment, ensuring that every student has access to the necessary resources for their studies.

The gallery space is a place for art and culture, allowing students to explore the world of creativity and imagination. The reading room is a place for quiet contemplation, where students can focus on their studies in a serene and peaceful environment. The design of these spaces is focused on creating an atmosphere that promotes learning and growth, with the key elements of natural light and comfortable seating. The combination of these elements creates a space that is not only functional but also aesthetically pleasing, allowing students to feel at home while they study.

The ceiling space is designed to accommodate the needs of the students, with a mix of natural light and artificial lighting. The ceiling is a place to display art and culture, with the use of track lighting to highlight the art pieces. The design of the ceiling is focused on creating a sense of unity and connection, with the use of natural light and the inclusion of art pieces.

The library is a space that celebrates the past, present, and future generations, providing a place for study, research, and reflection. The design of the library is focused on creating a space that is not only functional but also aesthetically pleasing, allowing students to feel at home while they study.